This piece by artist Beatriz Monteavaro depicts the Go-Gos' about to rescue Adam Ant, Bela Legosi and Gary Numan as they're trapped in the Notre Damn cathedral with zombies.

BEATRIZ MONTEAVARO

The work of Miami-based artist and musician Beatriz Monteavaro (<https://www.bmonteavaro.com/>) is distinctive for its densely drawn narrative images and environments. It's also distinctive for its representation of pop culture icons including Gary Numan, Adam Ant and the all-women new wave band The Go-Go's (<http://www.gogos.com/>). A retrospective exhibition of her work titled "Beatriz Monteavaro: Vacation (<http://www.rauschenberggallery.com/>)," opens Jan. 16 at the Bob Rauschenberg Gallery at Florida Southwestern State College (<https://www.fsw.edu/>) in Fort Myers.

The show includes several never-before-exhibited works by Monteavaro. Tonight's exhibition opening will also include a performance by Monteavaro and Go-Go's guitarist and founding member Jane Wiedlin. We'll talk with Monteavaro, Wiedlin and Rauschenberg Gallery Director Jade Dellinger.
